Your Next Chapter Starts Here!

Tucked away at the end of a quiet cul-de-sac, this semi-detached home has that rare quality of feeling bigger on the inside – and we mean 'properly' spacious, not estate agent spacious.

Step inside and you'll find rooms that actually work for real life. The kitchen-diner isn't just big – it's the kind of space where homework happens alongside dinner prep, where Saturday morning pancakes turn into lingering coffee, where friends end up perched on counters because nobody wants to leave the conversation. There's a ground floor bathroom too (the genius of which you'll appreciate during school-run mornings), plus a living room that's genuinely separate when you need some peace.

Upstairs, four bedrooms mean everyone gets their own territory, with a sharp modern shower room that won't cause the usual bathroom traffic jams.

Outside is where this place really shows off. The front? Low-maintenance and done – because who wants to spend weekends weeding? Parking for at least two cars plus a garage sorts the practical stuff – and with an EV charging point already installed, electric vehicle owners are well catered for too. But the back garden... that's your summer HQ. Sprawling lawn, deck for lazy evenings, a patio for proper dining, even a dedicated picnic spot (yes, really). And the view? Those sweeping Aire Valley vistas will have you standing there with your morning tea, just staring.

And for families, it gets even better – Long Lee Primary School is just a short walk away, making those school runs refreshingly simple.

This isn't just a house that ticks boxes – it's a home where life actually unfolds.
