Sometimes, external appearances can deceive when it comes to size, and this wonderfully creative dormer style semi-detached house certainly falls into that category.

To start with, the standard of the interior finish is of the highest order. The whole place has been decorated and styled with an incredibly tasteful eye. It's welcoming, comfortable, cared for and is as happy as a house can get.

It sits in a slightly elevated position in a very private, small cul-de-sac at the north end of Elwick Village. The views from the front are delightful and the rear bedroom window overlooks open farmland.

Very briefly, the accommodation comprises an entrance hall, large 24ft through lounge/dining room, kitchen, inner hallway with a really useful downstairs toilet and a rear sitting room which could be easily be used as bedroom number four or a home office if needs be. If you're struck by the temptation to create one huge kitchen/diner, we think it would be a relatively straightforward process in this house. All three first floor bedrooms are large doubles and there's a family bathroom with a fabulous modern white suite. The master bedroom is flooded with natural light courtesy of the patio doors which open onto a rear facing Juliet style balcony overlooking the gardens up and down the close and open farmland beyond. It also has built-in wardrobes, a fabulous feature wall and shower room en-suite.

Outside, the gardens are neat and well kept. The rear garden is a particularly good size, laid predominantly to lawn and has a decked patio area. The herringbone pattern block paved driveway provides parking for several cars and it leads up to a detached single garage.
