Imagine moving in without a list of jobs waiting for you. Fresh décor, a brand-new kitchen and shower room, a full rewire and plenty of parking – this Hartburn bungalow has been refreshed with easy living firmly in mind.

Occupying a generous corner plot on Birkdale Road, this is a home that combines the convenience of single-storey living with the freedom of substantial outside space – and with no onward chain, the route to getting the keys could be refreshingly straightforward. The property is offered at £225,000.

Inside, the fresh neutral decoration creates a light, clean backdrop ready for furniture and personal touches. The newly fitted kitchen feels crisp and contemporary, while the brand-new shower room continues the fresh finish. Add the reassurance of the property having been rewired, and much of the costly modernisation has already been taken care of.

The layout lends itself beautifully to relaxed bungalow living. There's a generous lounge, two bedrooms and the added bonus of a conservatory – somewhere to sit with a morning coffee, read a book or simply enjoy a little extra connection with the garden.

Outside is where the corner position really earns its keep. The frontage provides an impressive amount of off-road parking, making life particularly easy for a household with several vehicles or regular visitors, while the garage adds further practicality.

To the rear, the predominantly paved garden is geared towards low-maintenance outdoor living. Rather than spending every weekend cutting grass, there's space to create seating and dining areas, add pots and planters and enjoy summer afternoons with relatively little upkeep.

And then there's the location. Hartburn remains one of Stockton's established residential areas, making this an appealing proposition for anyone looking to downsize without compromising on space, parking or everyday convenience.
